*The years of music now are stilled
that once with joy my heart was filled.
Now echoes only come to me
in the call of the birds and the sounds of the sea.
But hush my grief, I must move on
and cherish those who still live on.*

Vic was a happy friendly man, a devoted son and husband. He was a very accomplished classical pianist and also a talented penman. He gave up his own commercial art firm to enlist and serve 5 years active service in the A.I.F.

His great love was for the sea and the fishing, surfing and boating that went with it.

During the final years of his illness he was very brave with no complaints, no "why me".

As the years go by my treasured memories still stay strong.
