Most people should eat more fruit and vegetables. One way to do this is to change your meat-based recipes by substituting some or all of the meat with vegetables, beans and lentils.

What are the benefits?

Not only will modifying your recipes help save you money – because meat tends to be more expensive than vegetables – it will help you reduce your fat intake, increase the amount of fibre you eat, and help you eat five serves of vegetables a day.

How can I change my recipes?

It's easy to modify traditional recipes by adding chopped or grated vegetables in place of meat. See the fact sheet Fruit and Vegetables for more ideas.

- Aim to include no more than 100 g meat/fish/ poultry per person in a recipe.
- Decrease the amount of mince in bolognaise sauce, shepherd's pie, tacos and homemade hamburger patties by adding grated carrots, celery and zucchini, or cooked red lentils.
- Decrease the amount of meat on pizza by adding vegetables such as mushrooms, capsicum, onions, corn kernels, sliced potato and pumpkin, and fruits such as pineapple.
- Use tofu as a meat replacement in stir-fries.
- Add cooked or leftover vegetables to omelettes and soups.
