

Alan Slater

15th July 1934 - 10th July 2008

Born in Sheffield Yorkshire England, Alan emigrated with his wife Mary to Australia in 1959. A decision he never regretted. He was an electrician by trade but was an inventor at heart. After taking early retirement, he worked tirelessly inventing and manufacturing aids to help those less fortunate.

He was a devoted husband, loving father of three and adored grandfather to seven. He was always the first to lend a hand, loved to travel, had an enquiring mind, a wicked sense of humour and cherished his friendships.

One of nature's true gentlemen.

Diagnosed with pancreatic cancer in May 2008 he rarely complained and worried more about everyone else to the end. The family were, and continue to be, surrounded by loving caring friends who make his passing bearable.
